Introduction

We'd like you to meet our sea captain
Who will guide you through this book
And tell you what is coming next
As at each page you look.

He's short and fat and friendly
And his beard hides a happy smile
And 'though he is not handsome
His deeds shall prove worthwhile

So folks, let's join the captain
In a voyage of recall
Through the past four years of learning, —
And memories dear to all.

Foreword

We are now in the year which will mark the end of our voyage together. We embarked on our way four years ago, and have slowly and steadily pushed forward until at last our destination is in sight.

What is yet to come is unknown to all of us, but what has passed, will remain with us always. The memories of these years will always be there for us to rediscover. Even when names and faces have faded into the past, the times spent here will not be forgotten.

This year, we have based the theme of the HUTTLESTONIAN on the sea, and the whaling captains of old. Our purpose in doing this was so that in the future, we may try to emulate the qualities of these men — courage, determination, the ability to differentiate between right and wrong, and above all, faith in one's ideals. Once we succeed in attaining these qualities, we shall become closer to achieving our goal in life.

Thus, in this year of 1953, as we set our course toward our aim — success, let us profit by the value gained from the experiences of these past four years, so that as we go our separate ways in the future, each of us may reflect credit on our faculty and our school, to whom we owe so much.

FAIRHAVEN HIGH SCHOOL

OFFICE OF THE PRINCIPAL

To the Class of 1953:

The stories of King Arthur tell us how he required those who aspired to knighthood to lay their hands in his and promise certain things. The standards were set high; the duties prescribed were difficult, yet there were always young men eager to take the vows of chivalry. Through discipline and service, they sought to make themselves worthy members of the Round Table.

At home, at school, and perhaps as a member of some organization you have been subjected to a certain amount of discipline. There have been requirements to be met and tasks to be completed on time. Some young people rebel against any form of coercion, but those who are wiser understand that without a feeling of compulsion nothing of consequence can be accomplished. At first it is parents and teachers who compel us to act in approved ways and to perform appropriate tasks, but if the process of education is successful, we reach a point where we are more and more actuated by self control.

During the years spent in Fairhaven High School, you have had opportunities for healthful exercise and recreation. I hope you have developed strong, healthy bodies.

Here, too, you have had an opportunity to cultivate your mind. I hope you are leaving high school with a reasonable stock of pertinent information and with clear conceptions of what we mean by citizenship in a country like America.

There have been opportunities also to strengthen your allegiance to high moral principles. No one can go through high school without having to make choices between the good and the bad and between the good and the best. I hope you have developed a character that will demand of you honesty, truthfulness, and trustworthiness in all your relations with others.

There are great differences between the age of chivalry and our own day. There is no King Arthur now recruiting knights for his court, but there are employers who set a high value on anyone who can undertake a difficult task and carry it to completion in spite of discouraging obstacles, and the world still needs those who have such zeal for fair play that they can find some time

"To ride abroad redressing human wrongs."

You go out to whatever lies before you possessing a precious heritage by reason of your American citizenship; you bear also the fine traditions of an old and honored school. We who know you believe in you and in your ability to make good, and we wish you well in the fascinating business of finding and filling your place in the life of your generation.

Sincerely,

CHESTER M. DOWNING

Junior Class Officers

After much thought and deliberation, we have come to the conclusion that the Senior Class of '53 is an unusual one, after all. Our conclusion stemmed from our interview with three of the more prominent Seniors. Their opinion of themselves was somewhat surprising.

Their opinion seemed to be this: during their Freshman year, they labored to become Sophomores; during their Sophomore year, they labored to become Juniors, etc.

We, as Juniors, will add that they have done a little more than that. We remind them of their several debates, the driving course which they are attempting to add to the Fairhaven High School curriculum, and, of course, the successful observance of "Courtesy Week."

Let us take a look at their original "courtesy campaign." What other Senior class, passing through the stately portals of Fairhaven High School, has performed such miracles with the underclassmen?

The Junior Class, to be sure, needed no such miraeles. Our manners, like other sterling characteristics, are perfeet. We Juniors are perfeetion personified from the tip of our shiny manners to the top of our tiny intelleets.

Our three famed Seniors then returned our compliments by reminding us of our talent show — minus the talent.

We bowed our modest little heads but couldn't avoid a show of pride at the deserved praise. Although we cannot take credit for any other feat as yet, we are eertain that our fourth and final year will be the most time-honored ever.

And so we close by thanking our brother class — for, at times, they have been a help to us — and wishing them every suceess in the future.

Class History

LOG OF THE GOOD SHIP 1953

September 7, 1949: We embarked on our voyage under the leadership of Ronald Hansen, George Harrington, Marie Ehnes, and Ann Chace, and our navigator was Mr. Marvin. The first social event of the year was the Freshman-Junior Dance; it was a fiasco, but we enjoyed ourselves, anyway. In May of this year, Marie Ehnes was chosen as the newest member of the cheering squad. May seemed to be an eventful month for the class of '53. It was then that the history class made a voyage to Boston with its teacher, Mrs. Bruce. We saw the Art Museum and the Boston Pops Concert. The band, chorus, and orchestra went to Attleboro that month, to attend the State Music Festival. Later in the month, the New England Festival was held at Rutland, Vermont, and our band received a deserved "A" rating. With full sail, we entered port in June 1950, having completed successfully the first lap of our voyage.

September 6, 1950: We pulled up anchor and resumed our voyage with Mr. Marvin, our pilot, and George, Ronnie, Ann, and Paul, our skip-pers. "Fitz" was chosen all Bristol County guard this year, a very unusual, and highly-coveted honor for a Sophomore. In the fall, everyone enjoyed himself at our Sophomore-Senior Dance. Nancy and Bernice were chosen to edit the Sophomore Page of the HUTTLESTONIAN. To replenish our treasury, the class sold greeting cards, and Donald LeBlanc and Jackie Yates won the prizes which were offered for the greatest number of cards sold. A Valentine's Tea was held for our mothers, to give the teachers and parents a chance to be better acquainted. Our basketball team went to the Boston Garden; and after conquering two other opponents, and winning in the finals against Matignon, we came home with the Class B Championship. The cheerleaders also achieved fame by capturing first prize at the cheerleading tournament in Spencer. Spring was also eventful, for the band, orchestra, and chorus journeyed to Weymouth to participate in the Southeastern Massachusetts music festival, and then later, traveled to Boston for the New England Music Festival. Still in good spirits, we headed in to port, and so ended the second part of our voyage.

September 5, 1951: We launched our ship into the waves of our Junior year with Miss C. Elcanor Delaney guiding our way, while George, Ronnie, Paul, and Ann continued to be our leaders. Two of our class-mates received honors, — Marie, by being elected head cheerleader, and Paul, by again attaining the honor of becoming a member of the all Bristol County football squad. Beverley was chosen to work on the yearbook staff, and with Nancy and Bernice, planned the Junior Page. Other Juniors chosen for the cheering squad were Jane and Claudia. The Junior-Senior Dance this year was a Harvest Hop, and later in the year, our class sponsored a Leap Year Dance. The Honor Society held its annual initiation in January, and six Juniors were admitted. In February we held a cake sale, the profits of which enlarged our treasury approximately sixty-dollars. The cheerleaders rowed to victory at Spencer, where they won first prize in the cheering tournament. On May 2, 1952, we held our Junior Prom. Ann made a lovely Queen, and Delores was her attractive attendant. Donald, Betty, Ann and Beverley were installed as officers of the National Honor Society for the Fairhaven Chapter, for their Senior year. May was also a memorable month, for the idea of the Courtesy Campaign then originated in a Junior English class. The band, orchestra and choral groups participated in the music festivals at Middleboro and The University of Massachusetts. Paul, Ronnie, and Ted Yanak went to Boys' State, and Ann to Girls' State. The usual observance of Junior Day was marked by the addition of a pageant. Thus, once more heading into port, we ended the third lap of our voyage.

September 3, 1952: With mixed emotions, we hoisted sail, and headed toward the open sea. Our navigator, Mrs. Marie Noyer, and George, Paul, Ronnie, and Ann, our officers, continued to guide us. The Football Hop, sponsored by the Senior and Junior classes was a pleasant occasion for all. "Fitz" was co-captain of the football team, and retained his position on the All Bristol County Team, in spite of injuries sustained when he fell from the poop-deck, while doing exercises. To raise funds for our graduation expenses, we sold Christmas cards, and thanks to our crew's persuasive ways, we made a large profit. Maud and Ronnie were added to the editorial staff of the Huttlestonian. The idea of a Courtesy Campaign became a reality, when the Public Speaking class organized a committee to start the campaign rolling. Acent on Courtesy Week, sponsored by our class, was held in early November, and proved to be a great success. In December, the senior play was cast with Leonard Ridley as the lead. The Student Council sponsored a mock town election, and John Lopes was elected selectman. For student government day in the State House, George was chosen our representative, and was later selected to be Speaker of the House. Ann was elected DAR representative from our class. Breaking tradition, we decided to hold our prom at the Country Club, and to have our banquet at the New Bedford Hotel, on a different night. We are now within sight of Diploma Island, and as we realize that our eventful voyage is ending, soberly prepare to disembark from the Good Ship 1953.

Class Prophecy

Dear Boss:

Here's our story — the greatest scoop of the year. Be sure to give us a by-line — (and a raise!)

As the plane soars through the sky, we, Maud Agnalt, Nancy Barnicle, and Beverley Bleakley, the editors of "Chlorophyll Magazine", discuss our newest assignment, which is by far the most important news event of the year. We are headed toward the Acushnet Rivieira, favorite resort of the international society set, where at present, the Fairhaven High School Class of '53 is holding its extravagant reunion.

The plane slowly descends to the runway of the spacious Turkey Grove Airport, and as we alight, a uniformed figure approaches us. It is none other than Dave Hirst, who as head chauffeur of the Sheraton-Astoria, is to drive us there in the limousine. Our journey is impeded by the slow progress of a large red tractor which is blocking the highway. Finally, we pull ahead and careen to a stop before the canopied walk of a regal hotel. Looking over the bay, we see the Presidential Yacht which has brought chief executive, George Harrington, to the reunion, along with Anna Calassa, Sylvia Cummings, Barbara Holt, and Betty Pepin, members of the official cabinet. Entering the lobby, we see Mary Lou Rego and Phyllis Machado, saleswomen of the "Cash and Carry Life Insurance Co.," struggling toward the desk with their luggage. Finally, they are rescued by Matthew Winterbottom and Roger Trudeau, owners of the Atomic Age Model Agency, who with two of their outstanding models, Joan Martin and Elizabeth Sylvia, have come to join the festivities. Our attention is drawn across the room to the head of the U. S. Intelligence in Paris, (Folies Bergere Division) the renowned Jane Marshall.

Finally, we are shown to our rooms where we find an invitation from Major-General Joseph Duarte, U. S. Marine Corps, to attend an afternoon tea.

At lunch we meet Paul Fitzgerald, Bob Davidson, Ronny Hansen, Ed Chmiel, Roland Kearley, and Ted Horsely, who have recently returned from the Olympic Games, having won international honor. Seated at a nearby table are the charter members of the Diamond Club, Janice Eldred, Pat Barrows, Martha Jenney, Franny Macomber, and Shirley Musakka. After thanking the maitre d'hotel, William Sherman, we stroll out onto the terrace. There we see Sandra Maxfield, the noted society columnist, reclining on a chaise longue. Nearby, Donald Le Blanc is discussing "Dimension X," his newest discovery, with Adolph Allerdt, the Hollywood idol. The famous Thespian, Leonard Ridley, having just completed a successful tour of Outer-Mongolia, is renewing his acquaintance with Paul Malcolm, star of the Metropolitan Opera. On the beach are seen many people of social prominence, including Eleanor Sherman, Beverly Tunstall, and Barbara Castelejo. Suddenly realizing that our feet ache, we go to our rooms and change shoes.

It is 4 o'clock, and Major-General Duarte's tea is in progress when we finally arrive. Our entrance is unnoticed, for Ed Chase is describing his latest excursion to the moon. In the circle of attentive listeners we see suspender manufacturer Robert Bernard, and Marty Bordwick, Jack Mullett, John Setzer, and Jimmy Sylvia, directors of the Bank of America. Guest of Honor, Ambassador John Lopes, is surrounded by Jackie Chapman, Cynthia Black, Barbara Hargreaves and Mary Lou Landis, beautiful members of the famous Alden Lumbarde Ballet Troupe. We suddenly notice Albert Comeau and William Crompton furtively sneaking from person to person, drumming up business for their bookie joint.

Leaving the tea early, we then proceed to the Smorgasbord being presented by Delores Davidsen, Gunhild Helgessen, and Norma Risdal. Senator Claudia Russell gives a toast to the noted explorers, Dotty Bungert, Barbara Reeves, and Alma Johnson, who have just returned from a triumphant expedition over the Alps. The concert artists in our class graciously agree to entertain us. Everybody enjoys the music of Theresa Joaquin -- pianist; Lois Pearson -- violinist; Searl Root -- saxaphonist; David Rogers -- clarinetist, and Danny Rogers -- drummer. Jackie Yates, prominent musical comedy star, sings several numbers from her recent hit show, and is accompanied by Pat McMullen at the organ.

After the entertainment, we renew our acquaintance with Dr. Betty Sylvia, the world-known psychiatrist; and Nancy Perry, fashion editor of "Vogue." We leave the Smorgasbord, accompanied by Dolores Lobo and Gene Sylvia, proprietors of the fashionable night spot, Club '53. Ted Yanak and Nat Weeks, millionaire stock brokers from Mattapoisett, drive us back to the hotel in their Stanley Steamer. On the way, we see Sidney Warburton and Joe Goulart returning from a quail hunt.

In the elevator, we greet Juliana De Pina, founder of the "Quick Change Nursery School." She informs us that Mildred Flynn, Marilyn Foster, and Joan Gallop have opened a new branch of their secretarial school in Freetown.

After changing into our evening clothes, we head toward the landing, where a launch is waiting to take us to the Presidential Yacht. At the landing, Dorothy Gonsalves and Rosalyn Kruger, ace newspaper reporters, approach us. We board the launch and are immediately welcomed by Joyce Senna, Theresa Louro, Alberta Souza, and Claire Le Blanc, stars of the weekly T. V. show "The Pretzel Hour." Miss Bernice Valenti, manufacturer of "Pink Pills for Pale People", and the rising artist, Delores Lima, are also there. Roberta Norris and Elaine Lewis tell about their newest book of poetry, which has startled the literary world.

We draw up alongside the yacht, and are helped on board by Dicky Perry, owner of "The Little Dandy Cherry Bomb Co." He escorts us to the ball room, where we are greeted by our host. On the dance floor, we see Helen Joerger, Professor of Archaeology at East Overshoe University; Sally Kingston, UN elegate from Canada; and Barbara MacLennan, director of the "Hearts and Flowers Matrimonial Agency." In the receiving line are Ann Chace, of the Fourth National Bank; and Jane Leach, creator of that famous comic strip character, Little Jo-Jo. Miss Bernice Garcia, noted Physicist, is dancing with Raymond Richards, expert on bird calls. Across the room, we notice Chuck Wordell and George Holt, owners of a chain of Comfort Stations. The honourable Patricia Nowakoski, Supreme Court Justice, is talking with James Johnson, C. B. S. news commentator. Irene Duarte, who has just written a book entitled "Motorcycling Made Easy," is seen chatting with Marion Monteiro, owners of the Plaid Cab Co. Prizefighter Sol Becker is seated at a nearby table with Alberta Perry, the lady wrestler. They are soon joined by Frances Morgan and Norman Benoit, proprietors of the "Wormy Rose Shoppe". Marie Ehnes, and Carol Quirnbach, co-captains of the first American girls baseball team, with their manager, Earl Sylvia, are in a corner discussing — business(?)

We leave the ballroom to walk along the deck, and there we find Marilyn Walsh, who is discussing her latest automobile design with Paul Souza, tractor designer, and Raymond Sylvia, perfume manufacturer. Peggy O'Leary, the noted tax consultant, waves good-bye to us as we descend into the launch and return to shore.

Thus, we have concluded our most important assignment, and are anxious to return to our quiet office.

Yours 'till we quit,

Class Will

The Good Ship 1953

March 12, 1953

Due to the fact that the articles heretofore written were reviewed by Admiral E. J. Dias, we are writing our last will and testament from the brig of the Good Ship 1953. Thus, with a glass of water beside us, and our allotment of stale bread stacked on the table before us, we adjust our shackles and chains, and proceed to draw up this final document.

SECTION I

To the subsequent classes who will vainly try to follow in our magnificent footsteps, we leave the following:

Item I. To Cecil Foote, Paul Fitzgerald leaves his handbook, "How to Win Friends and Influence Women."

Item II. Claudia Russell leaves to Martha George one throat lozenge. (Need we explain why?)

Item III. George Harrington bequeaths his political machine to "Biffy" MacLean.

Item IV. John Lopes wills to John Hatch his good nature.

Item V. Ann Chace bequeaths to Pete Barcellos a tuxedo for his Senior Prom.

Item VI. To Janet Bruce, Sandi Maxfield leaves instructions for making argyles for New Bedford men.

Item VII. Bob Davidson leaves for Plymouth!

Item VIII. Marie Ehnes wills her "page-boy" to Anna Carlson.

Item IX. To whom it may concern, — Anna Calassa leaves her roller skating skills.

Item X. Joe Duarte leaves Fairhaven High School!

Item XI. The Senior Class leaves to Fairhaven High School a set of ash trays to be distributed in the corridors.

Item XII. To next year's yearbook staff, the editors leave a slightly harried advisor.

SECTION II

To the weary teachers who have patiently borne our trials and tribulations for the past four years, we leave the following:

- Item I. To Miss Hoyle, the Senior Play cast leaves a siren, "Old Glory," a tear-stained script, and our affection always.
- Item II. To Mr. Lawton, Maud Agnalt leaves Algebra I, Plane Geometry, Math. 10, and Math. 11. Also a ruler and compass which she forgot to return last June.
- Item III. To the library, Naney Barniele leaves her autobiography entitled, "A Thousand and One Dates."
- Item IV. Sylvia Cummings wills to Mrs. Kelliek a whistle and a book of rules on girls' basketball, to be used when assisting Miss Hayes in refereeing games.
- Item V. To Mr. Noyes the girls of the Senior Class leave "T'amour toujours".
- Item VI. We leave to Mr. Clement a thesis written by Betty Sylvia entitled "An Eyewitness Report of the Revolution in Inner Mongolia" or "Outta Mongolia."
- Item VII. To Mrs. Johnson we leave the lost chord, which the Senior Class has found on various oeeasions!
- Item VIII. We bequeath to Mrs. Bruce a dog-eared eopy of the University of Tibet bulletin.
- Item IX. To Mr. Dias, the editorial staff leaves Mr. Begley.
- Item X. The Senior Class leaves to Mrs. Noyer a eordial invitation to the Senior Prom.
- Item XI. To the entire faeulty the Senior Class leaves our sincere admiration.

Thus, on this the 12th day of Mareh in the year of our Lord, 1953, we, the glorious elass of 1953 do deelare this our last will and testament, and appoint Mr. Lawton as exeecutor of the will.

Having exhausted our supply of bread and water, we are now contemplating mutiny!

Signed:

Junior Day

A day looked forward to by all Juniors with great anticipation is the time when they will finally attain the coveted position of Seniors. Junior Day unofficially marks this occasion. The Class of 1953 had its ceremony on June 13, 1952. Proudly, with heads held high, wearing our talisman roses, we marched down the aisle of the auditorium and took our seats in the chairs reserved for Seniors.

The program opened with the presentation of the mantle which is entrusted in the care of every Senior class and signifies our high hopes and ideals. George Harrington, our class president, received the sacred mantle in noble style from Charles Hazard, the outgoing Senior class president. Following this, came the awarding of prizes. Ann Chace was honored by being presented with the College Club prize, and Donald LeBlanc received the Harvard book prize.

As 1952 marked the 100th class to graduate in Fairhaven, a centennial pageant, written and directed by Miss Mabel G. Hoyle, was presented. Representatives from all the classes took part in this moving presentation entitled "Three Tenses". A speaking chorus heightened the drama of the pageant. The four scenes were as follows: an old-fashioned school room amusingly depicting the education system one hundred years ago; an interview telling of a proposed high school to be built by Henry Huttleston Rogers; the present school showing the variety of subjects offered; and finally a scene involved with the careers planned by high school graduates.

This brought to a close the Junior Day program, an event long to be remembered and cherished by us, for with it we came a step nearer to our final goal on the path of life.

Senior Play

The Cast of
"AMERICAN PASSPORT"

Ed Hamilton	Leonard Ridley
Louella	Beverley Bleakley
Judy	Ann Chace
Dick	Donald LeBlanc
Sybil Jennings	Nancy Barnicle
Bertha Hamilton	Maud Agnalt
Bill Wilson	Adolph Allerdt
Aunt Jen	Jane Marshall
Mrs. Schwartz	Anna Calassa
Mr. Craig	George Harrington

From January until the middle of March, the Senior Play Cast rehearsed daily. Time passed quickly; so many amusing things happened to us, that it did not seem at all like work.

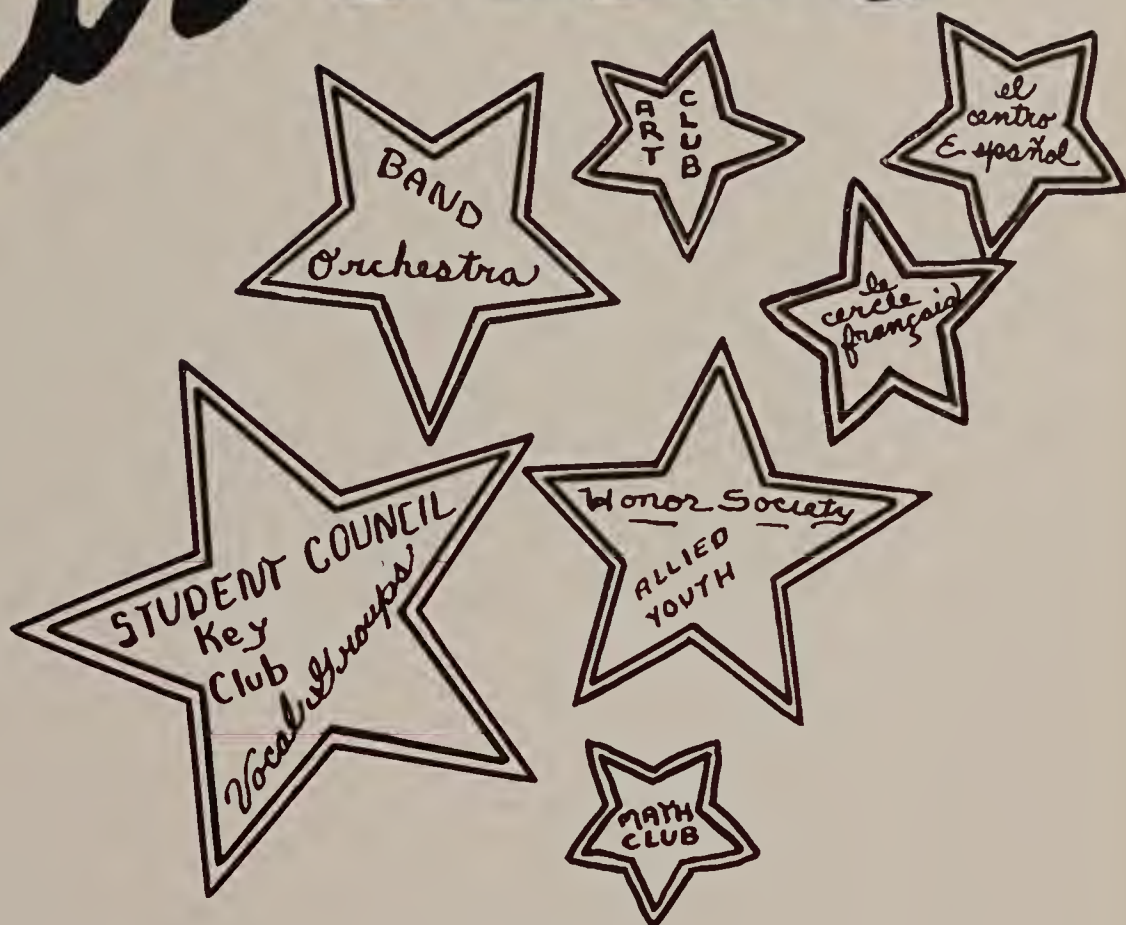

For ten weeks we converted ourselves into communists, capitalists, brats, and lovers. After much rehearsing, we became an abnormal American family, who faced the problem of Communism versus Capitalism. By the end of the play, Mother, Judy, and Dick became good Americans, father again became master of his household, Sybil got her man, Aunt Jen kept her money, and Louella remained a question mark.

The play was a success because of Miss Hoyle's ability, wit, and friendship. We know that none of us will ever forget our experiences from the first eventful rehearsal to the curtain call.

Activities

Honor Society

I received an engraved invitation requesting me to attend the Honor Society initiation at Fairhaven High School, on Wednesday morning, January 28, 1953. This is an annual ceremony at which new members are inducted into the society.

I arrived at the Huttleston Avenue Auditorium that morning and waited impatiently for the ceremony to begin. At last, the pianist struck a chord, and the Student Council filed into the room. Then the members of the Honor Society and the new candidates marched in in a solemn procession, which was led by the officers, who were attired in black robes.

The officers took their places on the stage, forming a shield, the four points of which symbolized the four qualifications necessary for entrance into the society — scholarship, leadership, character, and service. The ceremony proved to be a very impressive one as the candidates, while holding a flaming torch, promised to uphold the ideals of this organization.

After the ceremony, I was introduced to the officers, who are: Donald LeBlanc, President; Betty Sylvia, Vice-President; Ann Chace, Secretary; and Beverley Bleakley, Treasurer. Other members are: Elizabeth Sylvia, Helen Joerger, Anna Calassa, Sandra Maxfield, and Alberta Souza, Seniors; and Patricia Carmichael, John Darling, Mary Frances McKnight, Nancy Pearson, Gail Smythe, and Marietta Vogt, Juniors.

Ann Chace '53

Student Council

During my journey through Fairhaven High School, I attended a meeting of the Student Council. This group of young people is a democratic organization through which the students are able to assist in managing school affairs in the same manner that my officers advise me aboard ship.

As I glanced around the room, I saw President Paul Fitzgerald conducting the meeting, while George Harrington, vice-president, sat nearby, ready to assist him. I hurried over to peek over the shoulder of Joan Lopes, secretary, who was busily taking notes. From my glimpse at her records, I learned that the Council not only had helped to promote good citizenship and school spirit but had also conducted several successful projects during the year, under the guidance of Mr. Earl J. Dias, the faculty adviser.

These projects included a mock national election and a mock town election in which the students elected to office held positions in the town government for a day.

Ann Chace '53

Allied Youth

While strolling through the corridors of Fairhaven High School, I chanced to see a group of ambitious-looking students hurrying up the stairs. I learned that they were about to attend a meeting of Allied Youth. I decided to go right along with the crowd, and found myself sitting in Room 13.

Cecil Foote, president of this organization, then called the meeting to order. I learned that the purpose of this group is to uncover the evils of alcohol and its effect on young people. After talking with some of the members, I realized that the hope of each, is to prevent harm caused by alcohol, by learning to face this problem intelligently.

I also had the privilege of meeting the other officers, who are: Geraldine Corcoran, vice-president; John Lopes, secretary; and Joan Lopes, treasurer.

Ann Chace '53

Band

Many times when returning from lengthy sea voyages, I have been met at the wharf by bands, but there was never a one that could match this Fairhaven School Band. I'll be blown — they surely make a fine picture as they parade across the football field.

The band uniforms strike me as mighty neat, too. The colors remind me of the sea and the sky on one of those rare calm days when there's not a cloud in sight.

I hear that the Band, nearly sixty strong, plays for all the football games, tournament basketball contests, and that it marches in various parades. The school must really be proud of this organization, with all of its spirit and color.

Sandra Maxfield '53

Orchestra

A visit to orchestra rehearsal was included in my tour of Fairhaven High School. I enjoyed hearing this group because they play some songs which were popular in the days before I put out to sea.

After the rehearsal, I stopped for a brief chat with Miss Elizabeth I. Hastings, director, and she told me that the group was rehearsing for its part in the Senior Play program. The orchestra also provides entertainment at various assemblies during the school year, and, in the spring, the entire group participates in the Massachusetts and the New England Music Festivals.

This schedule sounds very interesting. I wonder if there would be room in the orchestra for a retired sea captain who plays the sweet potato.

Choral Groups

While passing through the corridors of Fairhaven High School, I chanced to hear melodious sounds from the auditorium — sweeter even than those of a bosun's pipe. I sauntered in to find a group of students gaily singing a ship-shape arrangement of "Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be." Mrs. Marguerite Johnson, who was conducting, told me that this group, which rehearses every Monday morning, was the Vocal Ensemble and was comprised only of Juniors and Seniors. Another group of upper-classmen, who meet on Friday, is the ensemble from whom she selects those capable of doing quartet work for special performances. These quartets rehearse every Monday evening at Mrs. Johnson's home, and they have appeared at school assemblies, before the Ivy Circle of New Bedford, at the Golden Age Club, and for servicemen at Camp Edwards.

The vocal groups have earned money during the year through a successful candy sale. The Vocal Ensemble and quartets were assisted in this project by the other vocal groups — the Girls' Glee Club, Boys' Glee Club, and the Freshman-Sophomore Chorus.

Key Club

Well, mates, here I am again. This time I want to inform you of the activities of a most ambitious and industrious group of boys. They are banded together in an organization called the Key Club, led by Paul Fitzgerald, president; Paul Malcolm, vice-president and secretary, and Ronald Hansen, treasurer.

Under the leadership of these able officers and with the invaluable assistance of Mr. Robert Lawton of the faculty, the club sold Christmas wreaths and pencils so successfully that the group increased its scholarship award from twenty-five dollars to fifty dollars.

The club is sponsored by the New Bedford Kiwanis Club, and, from what I have observed with my seaman's eye, they are a decided credit to Fairhaven High School.

"The End of Perfecting Day"

G. A. A.

Having received an invitation from Miss Hayes, faculty adviser of the G. A. A., I attended one of their meetings. As I opened the door of Room 8, a group of babbling, young women nearly floored me! I quietly crawled over into a corner and listened attentively to Sylvia Cummings, President of the large group, conduct the meeting.

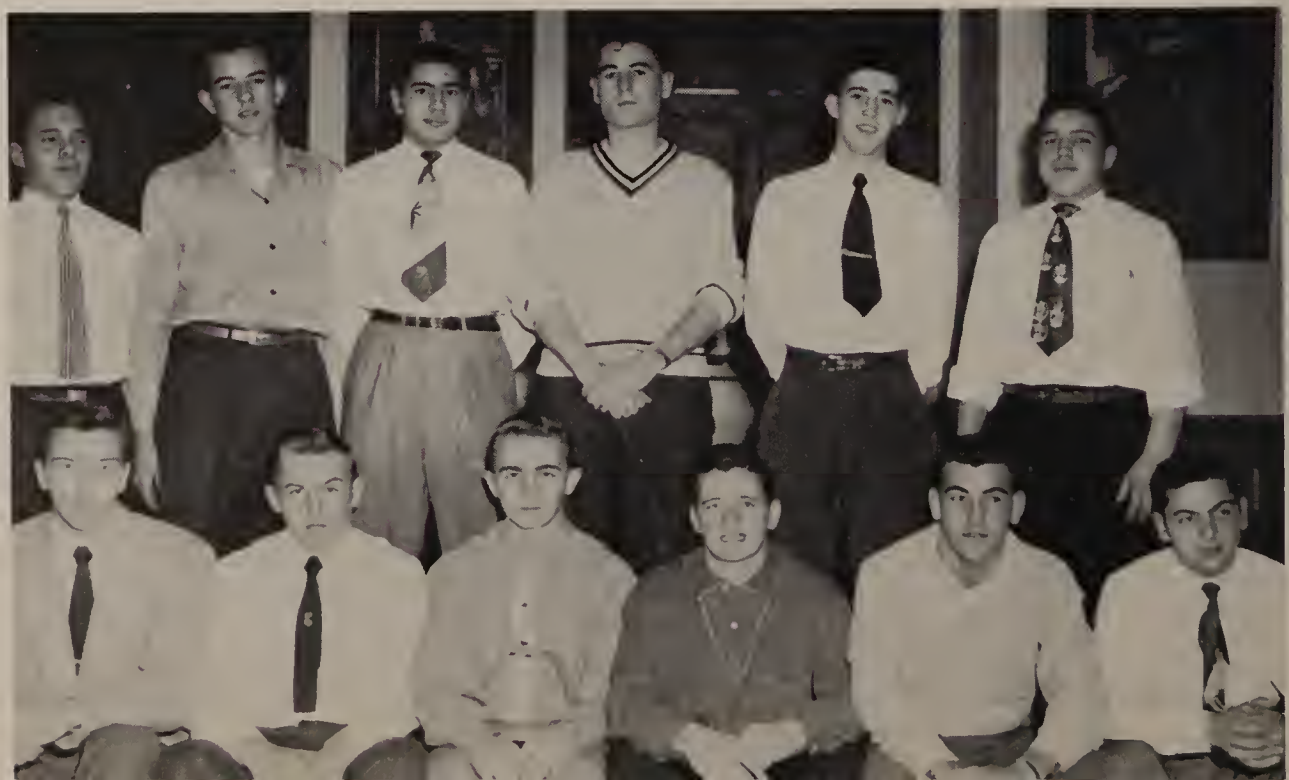

They eagerly discussed their plans for a cake sale which they were to sponsor in the near future. But what interested me most was their plans for the organization of soccer, volleyball, softball, and tennis teams. I could readily see that these girls meant business!

When Miss Cummings adjourned the meeting, and the group had filed out, Miss Hayes told me that at the close of the year awards were to be given to the girls who had earned a specific number of points for athletic achievements, and that the Senior who had earned eighty points or more would also be given a special award.

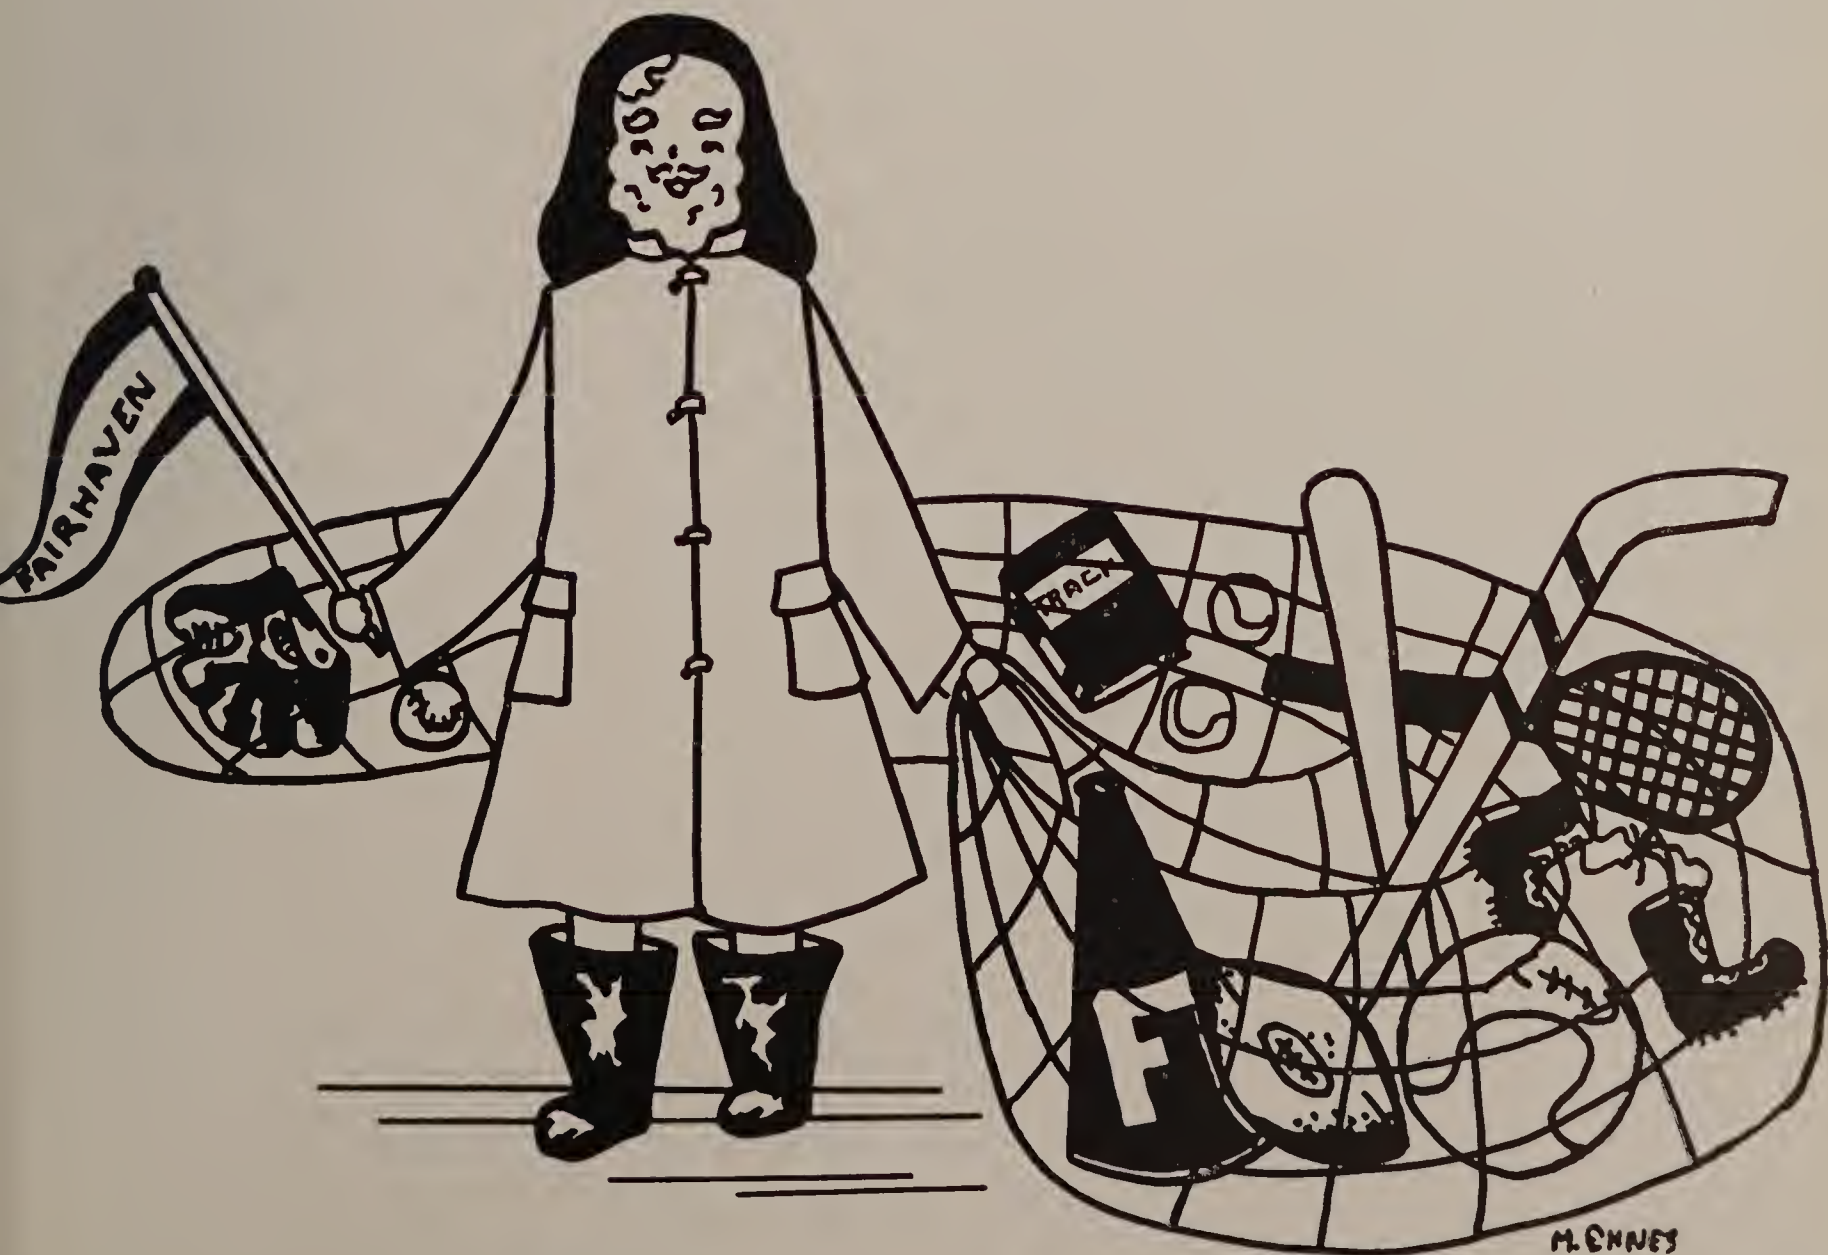

The officers of the G. A. A. are the following: Sylvia Cummings, President; Anne Moore, Vice-President; Irene Knudsen, Secretary; and Louise Garcia, Treasurer.

FOOTBALL HIGHLIGHTS

Football

After the dust had cleared, the blue-clad warriors of Fairhaven emerged with a not too impressive won 1 lost 7 record to show for their sweat and toil on the gridiron this past fall. Due to the loss of no less than seven lettermen, coupled also with the loss of other key men, many ardent F. H. S. routers were a bit pessimistic as to how Fairhaven was going to meet such a rugged schedule with any degree of success.

Once again the season opened with Coyle, where a rugged, veteran-spiced team proved too tough an opponent for Fairhaven's inexperienced eleven. The following week against Vocational saw time run out as Fairhaven's final bid for victory fell short in a nip and tuck battle all the way. Defeats were suffered at the hands of Attleboro and Barnstable, with the latter just squeaking past the spirited and upset-minded Fairhavenites, who were led brilliantly by their versatile All Bristol County halfback. Defeat continued to be on the menu for Fairhaven as they were set back by powerful Howe High of Billerica followed by the heart-breaking loss to our dear friends across the river. Despair didn't continue, however, Fairhaven, once again led by MacLean, emerged victorious over Falmouth. Much to the dismay of all, the never say die Entinmen ended the season with an unforgettable, near upset over a powerful Taunton eleven.

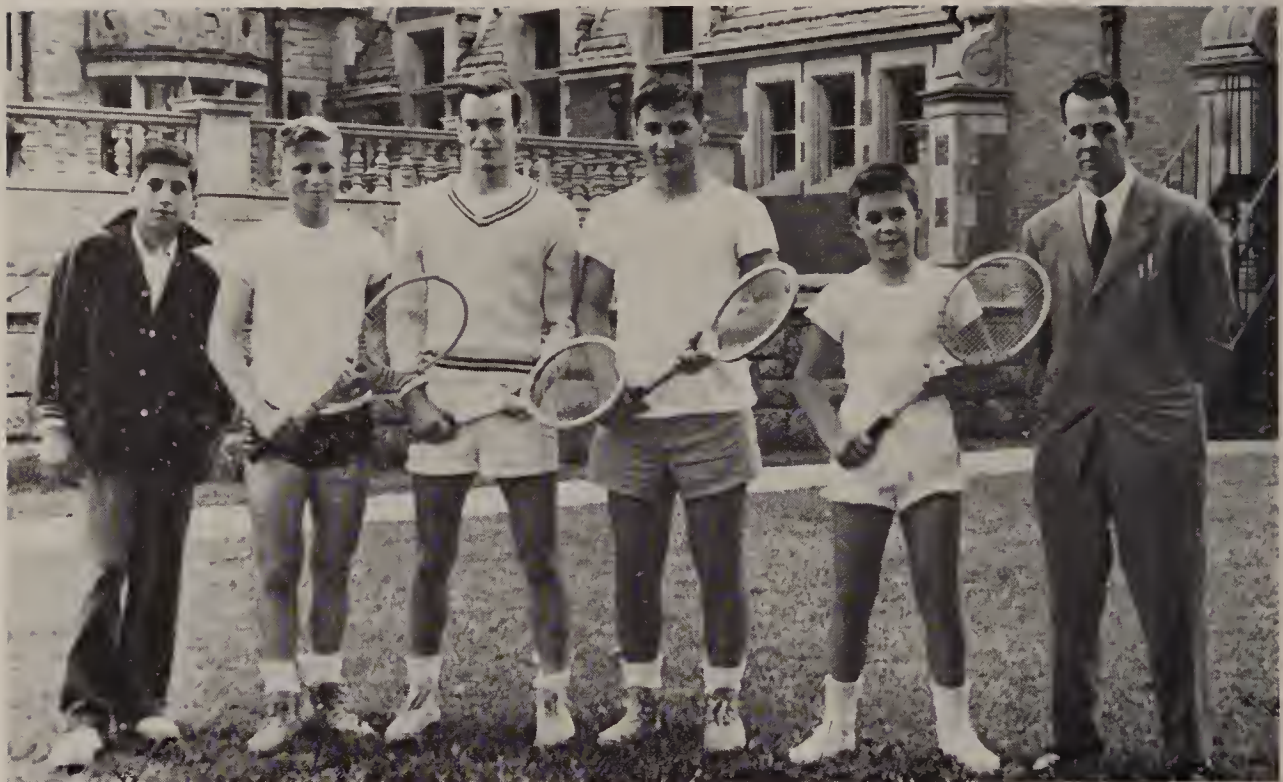

THE SCHEDULE

Fairhaven 0	Coyle 40	Fairhaven 20	Howe 39
Fairhaven 6	Vocational 12	Fairhaven 0	New Bedford 6
Fairhaven 0	Attleboro 12	Fairhaven 19	Falmouth 0
Fairhaven 20	Barnstable 27	Fairhaven 21	Taunton 25

Tennis

Fairhaven High's novice tennis team enjoyed its second season of competition this year, under the able guidance of Coach George Cook. Although the record compiled by Coach Cook's netmen wasn't too impressive, the determination, hard work, and improvement that the inexperienced lads showed, was sufficient enough for Coach Cook to expect many auspicious seasons in the future.

The Team:

Louis Xifaras (Co-capt.)
 William Walker (Co-capt.)
 Kenneth Niznik
 John Senna
 Earle Sherman

The Record: Won 2—Lost 7—Tied 1

Fairhaven 1	St. George's 5
Fairhaven 2	Portsmouth Priory 5
Fairhaven 1	Tabor 6
Fairhaven 4	Prov. Country Day 2
Fairhaven 1	Brockton 5
Fairhaven 0	Brockton 6
Fairhaven 2	St. George's 1
Fairhaven 3	Tabor 5
Fairhaven 3	New Bedford 3
Fairhaven 2	New Bedford 4

Baseball

The Fairhaven High School baseball team, under the able guidance of Coach Alec Clement, managed to stay over the .500 mark this season, in posting a well-earned 6-won 5-lost record.

Coach Clement had little to work with this season, but through perserverance and hard work by both himself and the team, he was able to lead this inexperienced F. H. S. nine to a winning season.

This season was high lighted by well-earned victories over rivals New Bedford and Vocational at home. Two of Fairhaven's losses, however, were heartbreaking 1 run losses to New Bedford and Vocational in extra innings.

The season's record:

Fairhaven	3	Tabor J. V.'s	2
Fairhaven	10	Providence C. D.	2
Fairhaven	14	Dartmouth	17
Fairhaven	3	Falmouth	11
Fairhaven	5	New Bedford	4
Fairhaven	9	Vocational	8
Fairhaven	3	Portsmouth Priory	2
Fairhaven	1	New Bedford	2
Fairhaven	5	Taunton	9
Fairhaven	12	Tabor J. V.'s	2
Fairhaven	8	Vocational	9

Basketball

Merit, well deserved! was earned by our team this year, as they compiled a surprising but brilliant 16 and 2 record, which included wins on our home court over New Bedford and Vocational and a double victory over Taunton — all class A teams.

Mr. Entin, with only veterans “Biffy” MacLean, Paul Dumas, and Bob Davidson to work with had to find replacements for the loss of Bob Honohan and Vern Gomes. This looked like a hard job at first, but through the efforts of Ted Horsely, Dale Stetson and freshman Paul Hirst, who were second stringers a year ago, the team functioned like a well oiled machine throughout the season.

Fairhaven’s only losses of the season were against their across-the-river foes, New Bedford and Vocational. New Bedford managed to eke out a 57-45 victory over Fairhaven, on their own floor, in the last three minutes of play — while the speedy Artisans copped the like by a 63-51 count.

The highlight of the season was Fairhaven’s tremendous 79-77 thriller over rival New Bedford, on the former’s floor. Fairhaven’s captain “Biffy” MacLean let go a three-quarter court desperation shot with one second to go, that swished through the hoop, to give Fairhaven an undisputed 79-77 victory over New Bedford. Equally notable, however, was Fairhaven’s avenging of a previous loss to Vocational, by thumping the Artisans 70-38.

Cheerleaders

At one of the games this year in the Fairhaven High School gym, I was not only amazed by the talent of the team, but was also aroused by the "blue lassies" who worked so enthusiastically to maintain an outstanding school spirit.

At the half, I chatted with one of the cheerleaders and found that the squad was composed of three Seniors and four Juniors. She told me that last year the same group, with the exception of one, entered the annual Cheerleaders' Tournament in Spencer to compete with twenty-two other schools. Fairhaven received first place honors and was awarded a large trophy.

The success of the group has not come without effort on their part, for they have held regular practice sessions under the leadership of the head cheerleader.

The following are the members of the Fairhaven squad: Marie Ehnes, head cheerleader; Claudia Russell, Jane Leach, Geraldine Corcoran, Beverly Reed, Joan Lopes, Audrey Carlos, and Anna Carlson, a very capable, substitute cheerleader.

Jane Leach '53

Girls' Basketball

Passing through the gym one day on my way to take a look at the re-done auditorium, I was blinded by a mass of royal blue. What was this royal blue mass? — None other than the Fairhaven Girls' Basketball team.

Stopping to chat with coach Ann Hayes, I found that the squad is continuing its fifth season in the Narragansett League. The schedule was most demanding; however, the morale was high. In spite of the schedule, the team did remarkably well.

This years most outstanding games were with New Bedford and New Bedford Vocational.

Members of the first team are the following: Irene Knudsen, Captain; Sylvia Cummings, Joan Lopes, Beverly Reed, Marie Cyr, Rita Cyr, Francis Sherman, Jane Moore, Anne Moore, Joan Romeo, Vivian Bariteau, Sandra Hogarth and Loretta Amaral.

"Accent on Courtesy Week"

With the innovation of "Accent on Courtesy Week" at Fairhaven High School, sponsored by the mighty seniors, came an increased feeling of respect and kindness for others.

On November eighth, as we passed through the many gaily decorated rooms and corridors, we were invited to attend a round-table discussion — the initial event of the week. Bulletin boards which had been prepared in each home-room, were unveiled on Wednesday, and a prize was presented to the winning room. On Thursday evening, which was Parents' night, Seniors were on hand in each classroom to introduce parents to the members of the faculty. The final event of the week was a Courtesy assembly on Friday morning. Paper napkins with courtesy slogans printed on them were distributed to the students in the cafeteria at lunch time.
